However, employees' use of social media can pose risks to ApMoSys' confidential and proprietary information, can expose employers to claims of sexual or racial harassment, and can jeopardize the company's compliance with business rules and laws.

It aims to ensure that all social media activities, whether personal or professional, reflect the organization's image and do not compromise its integrity or confidentiality. This policy outlines the standards for employees when using social media, both in personal and professional capacities, to protect the company's reputation and ensure consistent communication.

To minimize business and legal risks, avoid loss of productivity, and ensure that the company's IT resources and communications systems are used appropriately, all ApMoSys employees shall adhere to the guidelines and rules prescribed in the policy.

Apart from personal use of social media in accordance with this policy, ApMoSys encourages its employees to participate responsibly in these media as a means of generating interest in ApMoSys' products/services and creating business opportunities, so long as all of ApMoSys' rules and guidelines regarding social media usage are adhered to. ApMoSys takes no position on employees' participation in these media for personal purposes.
